

Entry Level Analytical Chemist - East Brunswick, NJ

Job Description

- Learn to perform method development/evaluation/optimization
- Test development and stability samples for assay, impurities, dissolution, content uniformity, water content, and some other physical/chemical tests as necessary, in a timely manner, following the corresponding analytical procedures
- Learn and follow good documentation practice and document analytical tests on lab notebooks timely and accurately
- Read, understand, and follow SOPs, relevant regulations, and safety policies
- Review and ascertain analytical data to ensure reliable and accurate analytical data generated by lab analysts
- Learn and update analytical test procedures, and protocols and prepare drafts of analytical reports
- Provide recommendations to the lab supervisor/manager to improve analytical procedures, SOPs, and/or lab efficiency
- Assist the Supervisor in planning and prioritizing analytical tests accordingly so that the project timelines are met
- Participate in and perform assigned tasks for R & D projects in custom formulation, process development, pilot scale production technologies
- Conduct other duties as assigned.

Qualifications

- College graduates B.Sc. in chemistry with some wet/bench chemistry and pharmaceutical testing experience or organic chemistry, biochemistry, or food science laboratory research experience in an academic setting or food chemicals and pharmaceuticals manufacturing and research and development settings
- Hands-on abilities with a variety of analytical instruments, such as HPLC, GC, Dissolution tester, UV/Vis spectrophotometer, FTIR, Karl Fischer titrator, Malvern or Coulter Particle Size Analyzer, etc.
- Understanding and knowledge of cGMP, FDA's FSMA rules and Pharmaceutical GMPs, USP/NF/FCC, and BRC/FSSC22000 standards is preferred
- Familiar with lab safety requirements

· Proficient with regular lab instruments software, Adobe Photoshop, and Microsoft Office including Word, Excel, and PowerPoint.

· Good communication and time management skills

Visa Sponsorship: Yes

Please send your resume to

Jenny Wang jennywang@unitedfoodscorp.com